DEVOTION - Asking for Help

submitted by Pastor Mike Neumann

I've never been one to ask for help. It's something I'm working on, especially professionally. It's because I've been let down before and struggle to trust. It's easier to rely on myself and no one else. This passage exhibits how important it is to rely on others though.

Are you sick? Struggling? Stuck in sin? The body of believers is there for all this. It echoes back to Eden that we were meant to be in community. Now with the added wrinkle of this being a fallen and broken world, it's much more vital that we rely on each other and be in community.

I understand not wanting to trust. I truly get it. Just like with me, I'm inviting you to step out and let people in. Start small with the people closest to you and build up. When I do get out of my own way, it's amazing what happens.
