Devotion - Look at How Life Can Change submitted by: Arielle Munoz

When we think about growth or achievement in our everyday lives, we may see it as a new skill, learning to play your first song on a guitar, planting the garden we have wanted, or earning that degree! All of these are most certainly achievements to celebrate. But do we step back to look at the most important growth and achievements, those that are spiritually led. I challenge you to look at what your life is like now, compared to before you decided to follow Christ, when you truly decided to allow the Holy Spirit to work within you, to allow Him to become more and you become less. If you haven't made this commitment, then I challenge you to ask someone who has!

There are times when we doubt the power of the Holy Trinity. Times when we overlook or ignore the unmatched power of change that is within us, around us, not just when we ask, but constantly. Take a moment to process the change, the growth, which has become you-him inside of you.

Recently, my 11-year-old daughter was asking about a physical scar I bear from a life previously of constant sin, pain, and control. I tried to answer her questions as to why and how I allowed another person to physically scar my body, I couldn't come up with a single reason. Why? The answer is simple: I am no longer that person. The person who once made my decisions no longer lives within me; it is Christ who lives within me now. I don't feel the pain of who I used to be, there is no shame or guilt of who I used to be, I cannot relate to that person because I am redeemed. I have decreased while He has increased and thank GOD for that. I thank our amazing, transforming, loving, unstoppable, relentlessly pursuing Father.
